A right royal knees-up

Singer Sophie Ellis-Bextor and her husband, The Feeling bassist, Richard Jones, get into character at the Wilton Way street party

RESIDENTS turned out in droves on 29 April to mark the Royal Wedding – and take advantage of an excellent excuse for a party.

Streets and estates were decked with flags and bunting while revellers ate, drank, danced and got to know their neighbours over the Bank

Holiday. A piano was set up in Wilton Way, and a range of regal outfits and headgear were on display. Meanwhile in Leonard Street a huge crowd packed out an event with bands, party games and a barbecue. A profusion of white lace, union flags and freshly baked cakes was in evidence across the borough, as Prince William's marriage to Kate Middleton was celebrated well into the evening. Turn to pages 8&9

FIRST DIGITAL DO

THE first festival to celebrate Shoreditch's world-class digital community launched this month.

Digital Shoreditch, from 3 to 7 May, showcased local talent as nearly 200 studios and firms in the area ran workshops, interactive artworks, games, projections and parties.

From starring in an animated version of Michael Jackson's 'Thriller' to one-on-one business advice for digital start-up firms, the festival offered events for interested individuals, technophiles and businesspeople alike.

Part sponsored by the Council, the aim of the festival was to cement Shoreditch's place at the heart of digital innovation.

Kam Star, CEO of Shoreditch-based PlayGen and festival founder, said: "This week-long festival is only the start. Digital Shoreditch is a collective movement built on the amazing talent and flair of our community that will establish Shoreditch as the world's number one destination for digital creativity."

Cllr Guy Nicholson, Cabinet Member for Regeneration and the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, helped launch the festival. He said: "Hackney has a long-established creative sector, and the digital and tech companies are the latest manifestation of this, a significant part of the engine room of both the local and national economy. The Council seeks to provide the best possible conditions for businesses to start up, develop and grow, helping to manage expansion and growth of the sector by encouraging investment."

Love London Fields

ANYONE strolling through Hackney's award-winning London Fields during a sunny weekend will see it provides great pleasure for a multitude of users.

But not everyone treats the park – which has been awarded a Green Flag showing it meets the national standard of excellence – with the respect it deserves. As a result the Council is running a campaign encouraging people to 'Love London Fields' this summer.

People are being asked not to leave cigarette butts and metal bottle tops on the ground; to use the cow patterned recycling bins around the edge of the park; and to dispose of rubbish or take it home.

Last year, the Council and police received a number of complaints about illegal trading, barbecues and bonfires – which are not permitted in the park – and can leave scorched patches on the grass. This summer, Queensbridge Safer Neighbourhoods Team (SNT) will be working with the Council and community to tackle anti-social behaviour in London Fields and conduct high-visibility patrols, taking action when necessary.

“We can all do our bit to help look after the park and keep it clean and tidy. Let's work together”

The Council is trialling a designated barbecue area by the south west entrance to the park, nearest Broadway Market. All barbecues must have a stand and be inside the designated area. Residents, park users, and the London Fields User Group are being asked to give their views on these trial measures becoming long-term policy. As part of 'Love London Fields', the Council is also set to carry out awareness days in the park in partnership with the police, on 14 May, 11 June, 9 July and 6 August.

Cabinet Member for Community Services, Cllr Jonathan McShane, said: "The Council will continue to do all it can to keep London Fields up to Green Flag standard. We can all do our bit to help look after the park and keep it tidy. Let's work together to continue to improve one of Hackney's best loved parks."

Sculpture for 2012 arena

An artist's impression of how the sculpture – outside the handball arena in the Hackney section of the Olympic Park – could look

THREE nine-metre tall letters forming the word 'run' are to be built outside the Olympic Park handball arena in Hackney.

Made of glass and stainless steel, the sculpture will have a mirror effect in the day, turning more transparent at night, when it will be lit up with internal LED lights.

The £2.1 million piece is funded by the Greater London Authority, the London Development Agency, and the Olympic Delivery Authority. Created by artist Monica Bonvicini, it is set to be unveiled as a permanent feature on the plaza outside the handball arena this autumn.

Residents will also get a chance to see inside the new arena, which is due for completion in June, at a series of test events. The London Organising Committee of the Olympic Games and Paralympic Games has said it will offer Hackney folk a limited number of free tickets to watch athletes try out the new venue in November. Free tickets will also be available for goal ball in December. Residents will also be the first to get the chance to buy tickets for basketball and BMX test events before they go on general sale. Details will be announced later this year.

New tricks

ADULT learners can pick up new skills and brush up on old talents thanks to a week of free courses across the borough.

More than 90 workshops will take place locally for Adult Learners' Week (14-20 May), the nationwide education festival aiming to inspire and encourage thousands of adults to get back into learning.

During the seven days, residents can choose from a range of subjects including philosophy, beginners' Mandarin, money management, yoga and cookery classes commissioned by local education services provider The Learning Trust and Hackney Libraries. Activities take place at libraries and community venues. Fred Roberts, who took a beginners' literacy course, said:

"I was a bit nervous the first time I came to see an advisor. I never knew I could go back to school. I'd like to let people know about Adult Learners' Week as getting back into learning has done a lot for me and I want others to have the same experience."

Phil McVey, 53, got back into learning after years of drug and alcohol addiction. He said: "I really did think my life was over. To come back and have someone say 'you're worth more than this and you can actually do something with your life'. Age is no barrier. If you want something bad enough there are people to help you."

An opening ceremony will take place on 14 May, from 12-4pm, at The Learning Trust, Reading Lane. Heritage partnership Discover Hackney is running a range of events. For info see page 18.

News in brief

Changes to East Marsh

EAST Marsh is set to be closed to the public this month as work for the 2012 Games steps up.

The area is being handed over to the Olympic Delivery Authority and will become the key access point for spectators at the northern end of the Olympic Park.

A temporary hard surface will be installed to host a coach drop off facility, plus parking for cyclists and disabled visitors during the Games. East Marsh is due to be returned to its original use, with Football Association (FA) standard, grass football pitches, and handed back to the borough in time for the 2013/14 season.

Improvements will include a new bridge over Ruckholt Road to provide direct access from the Marshes to the Olympic Park and a landscaped spectator area on East Marsh.

Cabinet Member for Regeneration and the 2012 Olympic and Paralympic Games, Cllr Guy Nicholson, said: "The Council has made sure the 2012 Games have been used to bring together a substantial investment for world class sports facilities across the Marshes. That investment has led to new rugby pitches, FA standard football and junior football pitches, cricket pitches and modern changing rooms with teaching and club facilities. This investment will ensure the future of football across all of the Marshes is secured for the next generation of players."

Scores of footballers enjoy the SNT Cup and (inset) Peace at the Crease

Cricket, football and harmony

FOOTBALL and cricket talent was in evidence at Hackney Marshes last month.

On 13 April, a team of Met Police officers and staff padded up to face young cricketers in the first official match to be held on the Marshes in over 15 years. 'Peace at the Crease' marked the opening of new facilities – including seven new pitches – jointly developed by the Council, the England and Wales Cricket Board and Middlesex Cricket Board. The event was part of the London-wide StreetChance initiative supported by Barclays Spaces for Sports. For more info, visit: www.streetchance.co.uk Then the Safer Neighbourhood Tournament (SNT) Cup saw scores of grassroots footballers get together to battle it out for trophies, as well as raise awareness of community safety and building relationships, on 17 April.

Now in its ninth year, the Cup – this year supported by Hackney Homes – involves teams from estates across East London. See: http://sntcup.com

A new cricket competition for Hackney Marshes, The Last Man Standing (LMS) League, will be starting on Thursday evenings from mid-June. Teams are invited to an open evening on 26 May. For info, prices and registration e-mail: hackney@lastmanstands.co.uk

Back in November last year, the Council and Film London teamed up to offer grassroots film-makers the chance to make their mark and win a cash prize for a 90-second piece shot in their area under the theme of 'Capital Tales'.

£500 cash prize, and his film, 'The Birdcage' goes through to the London-wide final. An overall winner will be selected by a film industry panel and screened at the annual Film London Best of Borough Awards at BAFTA later this year.

The Council's Film Office is now looking into opportunities for all five finalists' work to be screened in the borough.

News in brief

A better square all round

HOXTON Square was closed to the public for eight weeks on 3 May so a number of planned improvements can be made. As part of the Council's investment in the borough's parks and green spaces, the square will benefit from new plants and an improved lawn; more seating; a restored drinking fountain; and the re-laying of a path around the edge of the square.

The work is being carried out following a consultation to find out what kinds of improvements should be made.

The closest alternative green space is Shoreditch Park, approximately ten minutes walk up Pitfield Street or Hoxton Street. The square will be monitored by CCTV while work is taking place. For info call: 020 8356 3000; or visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/cp-community-parks

Meet the microbes

HACKNEY Museum is offering residents a chance to meet a host of nose invaders, gut-dwellers, lung destroyers and lifesavers.

The Council-run museum has joined up with educational charity The Centre of the Cell to create a new exhibition called 'Micro Monsters: The Good, The Bad and The Tiny'.

The interactive display, which runs from 19 May to 17 September, brings the science of microbes alive and is filled with eye-catching sights, fun activities and fascinating facts about the lives of microbes.

Hackney Museum is in Reading Lane, E8. For info call: 020 8356 3000; or visit: www.hackney.gov.uk/museum. The Centre of the Cell is based in Whitechapel. For info call: 020 7882 2562; or visit: www.centreofthecell.org

Booked in for improvements

WORK to improve Stoke Newington Library means it will be temporarily closed until 17 May.

When it reopens, customers will be able to borrow books and DVDs and pay fines at new self-service kiosks. This will mean staff can spend more time supporting customers, and managing stock, information and events. The interior will be slightly changed to reduce the counter size, and a teenage study area will be developed. Other planned improvements to the borough's libraries include a refit of Woodberry Down, and the opening of the new Dalston CLR James Library and Hackney Archives later this year. # A golden gift

A SINGLE 'Double Eagle' coin from a hoard of gold worth £100,000 has been donated to Hackney Museum, after a descendent of the rightful owner was traced.

The jar of 80 mainly 19th century American coins was unearthed in 2007 by two men from a special needs housing scheme, a support worker and a volunteer, as they worked in a Stoke Newington garden.

Max Sulzbacher, 81, the son of a Jew who fled persecution in Nazi Germany just before the Second World War, was declared the legal owner. This is the first time since the 1996 Treasure Act came into force that a find has been awarded to an heir, rather than being split between finder and landowner.

Max's father, Martin, was interned in the UK during the war as an 'enemy alien refugee' and relatives buried his fortune, fearing it would be seized by German invaders. Shortly afterwards their house was destroyed by bombing, the inhabitants killed and the coins lost.

When building work began on the site in 1952, another jar of gold coins was discovered.

Martin was awarded £1,000 under the old law regarding treasure finds – which made the local papers at the time.

After the 2007 find was reported to the Portable Antiquities Scheme, a historian alerted the coroner to the 1952 story. On 18 April this year, the coroner declared Max the rightful owner because, for a find to be classed as 'treasure', its owner or their heirs or successors must be unknown.

As well as giving the Council-run museum a coin, Max has also agreed to give a gift to the men who found the coins. He said he was 'surprised but delighted' by the discovery and expressed his gratitude to the finders.

It is thought the rest of the coins will be sold.

Cabinet Member for Community Services, Cllr Jonathan McShane, said: "This is an incredible story spanning over 70 years. Hackney has such a colourful history and this personal account gives an insight into how war affected families who had settled in the borough. This generous donation means the Council can display it in Hackney Museum and keep the story alive for generations to come."

AFTER what has been a very busy year, with more than 200 engagements carried out in her ceremonial role as Speaker of Hackney, Cllr Sally Mulready, is set to hand over her responsibilities as the borough's civic representative.

The Speaker is a serving councillor elected for one year by other members of the Council.

Over the past 12 months, she has met many local people and seen first hand much of the good community work that goes on across Hackney.

She has presided over citizenship ceremonies for more than 1,649 people, and attended more than 90 charity and voluntary organisation events, in addition to taking part in activities for young people and numerous school visits.

She has also been raising money for her chosen charity for 2010/11, Homerton Hope based at the Homerton hospital.

Reflecting on her year as the Speaker, Cllr Mulready, said: "It's been an immense privilege to have served the people of Hackney as Speaker. Over the year, I have been very moved by the extraordinary

"I have been very moved by the extraordinary voluntary work undertaken by ordinary people"

voluntary work undertaken by ordinary people in support of vulnerable people all over the borough.

"It has also been satisfying to hear from so many people about how proud they are of Hackney and the improvements being made in the borough which, in the case of older people in particular, they put down to good governance."

Cllr Mulready will continue in her role as Hackney's civic representative until the new Speaker is elected at the Council's AGM on 18 May.

A renowned campaigner who has dedicated her political life to challenging prejudice and discrimination towards minority communities and marginalised people, she will then carry on as a Chatham Ward councillor where she has served since 1998.

A right royal party

Residents turned out in their hundreds for street parties across the borough to celebrate the wedding of Kate Middleton and Prince William in true Hackney style on 29 April

IN true fairy tale style, a palace kiss in front of a rapturous crowd was the climatic finale to Will and Kate's nuptials.

But four miles east – and a little north – of the Westminster wedding, Hackney also flew the flag and showed the borough's community spirit spans all ages and backgrounds.

Residents toasted the happy couple at street parties across the borough on 29 April, for what was the most anticipated Royal wedding in 30 years.

Hobbs Place Estate, N1, laid on a spread of cakes and savoury snacks in their community hall. Annette Fletcher, who

Children enjoyed fun and games at St Mary's Estate,

E2, which offered face-painting, balloon animals and traditional party food. Nye Bevan Estate, E5, enlisted a DJ to entertain its revellers, while residents gathered around TV sets at Colville Estate, N1.

There was food, drink and general merriment at street parties on Killowen Road and Penshurst Road, in E9. A table-spread fit for a future king and queen graced Wilton Way, E8, which was filled with costumed revellers and supported by local celebrities Sophie Ellis-Bextor and members of band The Feeling. A TV screen on a windowsill broadcast the Royal kiss from the balcony of Leonard Street in Shoreditch was transformed with bunting, flags and pearly kings and queens as the heaving stretch of partygoers watched the ceremony on a big screen. Debra Hackett, 32, said: "We're down for the party and to help celebrate."

Marcus Anderson, 25, added: "We adore Will and Kate and we're just here for a day out."

Home is where the heart is

Eddie Nestor will be at Ridley Road Market with the BBC London 94.9 bus from 19 to 21 May

THE 'I Love Hackney' brand might have been made for actor, comedian, radio presenter and all round entertainer Eddie Nestor.

Born Edward Augustus Matthew Christopher Nestor in Hackney Hospital, Eddie does indeed promote the borough for all he's worth – even though he now lives just across the border.

"Wherever I live, I am a Hackney boy at heart and I tell people that as often as I can," he says.

Eddie plans to jog a lot of local memories when he broadcasts live from Ridley Road Market this month. The BBC London 94.9 bus will be based in the market from 19 to 21 May, and Eddie is inviting local people to come and tell him what they think about the 2012 Games.

Eddie is looking forward to being back in the market, he says: "I spent so many Saturdays there as a child, waiting for my mum as she talked and talked. I also love the Marshes and I remember in the days when I was fit I used to run around and around the place."

Eddie's rise to fame wasn't straightforward. After failing his 11-plus exam, he went to Upton House School in Homerton, which he calls 'the university of life'. He adds: "It is my biggest hang-up that I didn't go to university. I have a fixation with it. Even the people employed to answer the phone at BBC London have degrees."

Television was his first big break into the industry, with three years and 37 episodes on Casualty. Following that were roles in 'The Real McCoy', 'Desmond's', 'Trainspotting' and the BBC's 'Canterbury Tales'.

"My parents were really inspirational, they never really pushed me, but they didn't put me off either. That's what I always say to young people now – you can be who you want to be, do what you want to do. The only limit to what you can achieve is the limit of your own imagination."

After moving into broadcasting, Eddie won the Sony Award in 2007 for Speech Broadcaster of the Year. He continues to have an interest in acting and like so many Londoners, counts the

“Wherever I live, I am a Hackney boy at heart and I tell people that as often as I can”

Hackney Empire as one of his favourite places: "I spend as much time there as I can, both on stage and watching shows. It is a national treasure and produces the best pantos in the country," he adds.

On 19 May, Eddie will be grilling local politicians about the Games – so what does he think of the world's biggest sporting competition coming to town? "I hope that the sense of pride and togetherness we witnessed as a result of the Royal Wedding will be replicated throughout the 2012 host boroughs," he says.

If we're all advocates of Hackney as much as Eddie Nestor, then that shouldn't be too hard.

All your recycling questions answered

Q: I have noticed litterbins for mixed recycling near my home in Shoreditch and think they're a great idea. Are there plans to put any more of these bins out in Hackney?

A: The bins you have seen are part of Hackney's 'recycle on the go' scheme that lets people put recyclable materials into a separate section of a litter bin for sorting, rather than everything being disposed of in landfill. These bins can also be found in Stoke Newington and Hackney Central as well as Hoxton and Shoreditch. This year, there are plans to place extra bins of this type in busy parts of Hackney, as well as in parks, so keep an eye out wherever you go in the borough.

Look out for bins around the borough

Residents of all ages can get to grips with gardening at St Mary's Secret Garden

A GARDENING project in the heart of Hackney is running a series of practical horticulture workshops.

Staff at St Mary's Secret Garden have seen a rise in enquiries from residents about how to get started.

Garden Manager, Paula

Gent, said: "People phone us up to ask when is the best time to sow tomatoes, or how to earth up potatoes, and we give advice and practical help where we can.

"So long as there's space in the greenhouse, locals can bring in pots of seeds to germinate and ailing plants for a short stay."

In the last few years many people have begun trying their hand at growing their own vegetables – the sale of vegetable seeds has been outstripping that of flower seeds for the first time since the Second World War.

Paula added: "You don't need an allotment or garden to grow your own. You can grow herbs and salad in pots or window boxes, and if you have a balcony you can grow beans, tomatoes – all sorts of things."

'The Urban Vegetable Patch' workshop takes place on 21 May and 'Plants for Free: Propagation' on 4 June. Both run from 11am to 3pm and cost £50, or £30 concessions. There is also a free 'Grow Your Own' day as part of Adult Learner's Week, on 14 May, when a lunch picked from the garden will be on the menu.

Project sponsorship representatives Monica Kumah from Thames Water, Frances Lees and David Parkerson from Firmdale Hotels with one of Hackney's eight Indian bean trees

Beautiful bean trees

AN international charity teamed up with the Council to plant some new trees in Hackney last month.

Trees for Cities held a planting ceremony on the corner of Chart Street and Pitfield Street. It marked the completion of the project, which has seen eight Indian bean trees (catalpa bignonioides) take root in the area. The Council-backed project was funded by Thames Water, Rothschild Bank and Firmdale hotels.

Tree for Cities manages projects across the UK, as well as internationally in Addis Ababa, Ethiopia; Nairobi, Kenya; and Ica, Peru. It was set up in 1993 with the aim of improving the urban landscape through tree planting, community-led design, education and training initiatives.

Changing environmental views

A GROUP of young volunteers have celebrated their first year of working to tackle climate change and help reduce London's carbon footprint.

The 140 members – including 25 from Hackney – of the London Climate Change Youth Ambassadors programme have given thousands of hours of their free time to work on projects that have ranged from planting trees and developing community gardens, to inviting local people to make environmental pledges. The 16 to 25-year-olds attended an event at the London Film Museum, SE1, on 20 April to mark their achievements.

The ambassadors have revamped Hackney Community College roof garden, planting seasonal herbs and vegetables, and built a 'bug hotel' to increase biodiversity. They also made a film to help raise awareness among students about climate change. Cassandra Cheng said: "I wanted to educate people that making small personal changes that are easy and don't take up much time could make a very big impact. We have also gained new skills and I have learned to make short documentaries and work as part of a team."

The programme is managed by environmental regeneration charity, Groundwork London, and sponsored by technology and industrial multinational Johnson Controls, and v inspired, a youth volunteering organisation.

The north London boroughs of Barnet, Camden, Enfield, Hackney, Haringey, Islington and Waltham Forest have published the proposed submission version of the North London Waste Plan.

The North London Waste Plan identifies a range of suitable sites for the management of all North London's waste up to 2027 and sets out policies and guidelines for determining planning applications for waste developments.

We now want to hear your views before we submit the documents to a Planning Inspector for an independent examination. The period for making representations or comments runs for a period of 6 weeks from 11th May to 22nd June 2011.

Copies of the North London Waste Plan together with supporting technical documents can be downloaded from the project website www.nlwp.net. Paper copies are available to view during the 6 week consultation period at Hackney Planning Duty Desk, Hackney Service Centre, 1 Hillman Street, London E8 1DY and in libraries in the borough.

Your comments need to be in writing using the representation form and associated guidance note which is available on our website and at the above addresses.

Submit your representation(s) by 22nd June 2011

- on the response form on the website www.nlwp.net or
- by e-mail to feedback@nlwp.net or

Have your say on a new strategy for carers in Hackney

The Council wants to hear your views on a new strategy for carers in Hackney. The revised carers strategy aims to provide better support for the estimated 18,000 carers who look after other people.

Please tell us what you think about the draft strategy so that we can be sure that it is addressing fully what is important for carers in Hackney.

This consultation is open to all, but the Council particularly encourages responses from carers in Hackney.

The consultation runs from 4 April to 27 June 2011.

For more information please visit www.hackney.gov.uk/carers email: consultation@hackney.gov.uk or call 020 8356 5131.

Uncle Vanya

Until 4 Jun, Arcola Theatre, 24 Ashwin St, E8 3DL

Arcola Theatre presents a new production by Helena Kaut-Howson and Jon Strickland of Chekhov's masterpiece Uncle Vanya.

When a retired academic and his young wife return to their country estate their lives are turned upside down in this tragicomic story of love, passion and hope.

► For more info call: 020 7503 1646; or visit: www.arcolatheatre.com

The production, though faithful to the dialogue of the text, is a very different interpretation – especially in its style and tone, said the Ashwin Street theatre.

It added the performance focuses on the world of Chekhov's play: 'beauty, ugliness, hilarity and despair'. One critic has already called it 'one of the fresher, funnier Vanyas of recent memory'.

REVIEW

Land of Kings

28-29 April, various locations

FAKE marriages officiated by a ranting, swearing vicar, as a sergeant major barged his way through a crowd – just one of the many bizarre events taking place around Kingsland Road on Royal Wedding weekend. More disturbing was a pseudo-betrothed couple at the same Dalston Old Boys Club event who broke numerous taboos dressed as the Queen and her flame-haired grandson. With its closely guarded schedule released just before opening night, Land of Kings showcased artists, musicians and DJs from Hackney and beyond. Backstreet warehouse MC Motors was the starting point, with performers playing a range of Afro-latin tinged electronic music. The Rio Cinema screened short films for the Hackney and East End film festivals.

Efes Snooker Club hosted a Batty Base artist showcase with old school rave guests the Ragga Twins wrapping up. Meanwhile 2manydjs drew a massive crowd to the Magnolia Banqueting Suite, as did Romy XX's DJ spot at The Alibi.

All-day street parties left many attendees a little worse for wear come the 6pm festival start on 29 April. That said, rumour has it that Keira Knightly was seen dancing to a Klaxons DJ set and 'The Devil Wears Prada' actress Anne Hathaway tucked into a vegetarian dish from pop-up restaurant Rebel Dining Society. Still doubting the significance of Hackney's nightlife?

A new school in Hackney

A NEW school offering courses that combine vocational learning with traditional GCSEs could be opened in the borough.

Funding has been secured to develop proposals to create a University Technical College (UTC) – a career-focused school for 14 to 19-year-olds – in Hackney.

UTCs are sponsored by a university or further education college, and offer clear routes into higher education and work.

Students follow a full-time curriculum of technical study, alongside compulsory GCSEs in English, maths, science, IT, a modern language and humanities subject. Hackney's UTC would specialise in health and digital media because of the local employment opportunities in these fields.

The curriculum would be influenced by employers and universities in order to increase students' chances of continuing into higher education and work. So far, top-level staff from the University of East London – Hackney UTC sponsor – Homerton hospital and BT Group are among the new institute's board members.

The UTC would be on the Hackney Community College (HCC) campus in Hoxton and is scheduled to open in September 2012. Enrolment next year will only be open to Year 10 pupils, who leave their current school to join the UTC. Currently, the Government has released funding for around 24 UTCs across the country.

Students at the new school will focus on health and digital media, as well as compulsory subjects such as science

Ian Ashman, HCC principal, said: "This is a really exciting, new opportunity for young people. They will get the best education possible, with state-of-the-art facilities: a strong preparation for their successful future."

News in brief

Students at a previous Bridges to Africa event

PEAS walk for schools

THE Bridge and Mossbourne academies are among 50 schools taking part in a sponsored 10km walk to raise money for secondary schools in Uganda.

The 'Bridges to Africa' event will see thousands of students walk through the capital to raise £50,000 for PEAS, a charity that builds schools in the East African country. The 15 May walk begins in Vauxhall, continues across central London and finishes at Tower Bridge.

PEAS seeks to widen access to secondary education in Uganda, where only one in four children attend secondary school.

Now in its sixth year, 'Bridges to Africa' aims to widen its support work to include Zambia with its latest event.

Life's a stage

PERFORMING arts academy Anna Fiorentini Theatre and Film School celebrated its 10th year with a variety show at Hackney Empire.

The Clapton-based drama school has produced actors who have gone on to feature in BBC soap EastEnders, as well as high-profile West End productions.

It showcased its current crop of students in a show featuring famous scenes from stage and screen, including 'Dr Who', 'My Fair Lady' and 'Phantom of the Opera' and ending with a medley of feverish disco classics.

Principal, Anna Fiorentini, who grew up in the borough, said: "Apart from the students and their families, the success of the school has been down to the wonderful enthusiasm and passion of my staff."

Organisers also thanked celebrity guest speakers Michelle Collins and Ashley Walters, as well as other supporters who included Kate Garraway, Rudolph Walker, Sarah-Jane Honeywell and Rebecca Grant. The school was set up in 2001 to offer professional performing arts opportunities to seven to 18-year-olds locally.

It now also includes the Fiorentini Foundation to support children from lower income families to increase their confidence, self-esteem and life skills through the performing arts.

Funds to reach for the stars

BUDDING astro-scientists searching for ways into the space industry may start looking to Hackney to provide that giant leap for their careers.

Satellite communications firm Avanti, based in Shoreditch, hopes its space scholarship scheme will support five young people with a flair for sciences to pursue a career in the sector. Open to A-level students, the scholarships provide £3,000 a year in funding, a five-week summer internship, mentoring, and a six-month contract that could lead to a permanent job with Avanti.

Candidates should have A* to B grades and a place studying astrophysics, astronomy, space science or physics at UCL, Imperial, Plymouth or Lancaster universities. The scheme is geared towards students from lower income families – with combined salaries under £34,000 and £24,000, but one place will be awarded to a student regardless of their family income.

Avanti sells satellite broadband to telecommunications companies.

Soccer success

Club members and coaches at the first soccer camp

By Tayla-Destiny Vanriel, aged nine

ST Matthias Club decided to hold an Easter Soccer Camp where children aged eight to 15 could learn to play football.

The manager of the club, Steve, decided to split the ages up so that all the children would enjoy their time at the soccer camp.

The camp wasn't too expensive at only £10. It was a great opportunity because it gave us a chance to meet new people. The coaches were very nice people and we had girls who play for Tottenham Academy come and coach. Jenna and Phoebe, two of the coaches, taught us loads of skills to help us get better at football.

We all had fun at the camp and worked together as a team. We all went over to Hackney Downs every day to play football, and I had fun.

We began every session with a warm up game; trained for about two-and-a-half hours then had lunch before doing an hour and 45 minutes of little matches in a tournament within our groups.

On the last day the children all got a mini football, a soccer camp badge, plus a certificate.

Steve said that because the soccer camp went so well, he may consider doing a summer camp too. But first up is a Half Term Sports and Art Camp from 31 May to 3 June. It will cost £10 per day or £30 for all four days. St Matthias Club is starting football teams for under-nines and under-11s.

NEWS IN BRIEF

Screenings With Meaning

YOUNG people from Hackney have been attending a series of free film screenings that aim to stimulate discussion and provide a chance to meet new people.

Organised by the Council's Youth Service, the latest 'Screenings With Meaning' event tackles the myths and realities of urban street violence, with a screening of the controversial film 'Shank' followed by a debate about the issues raised in the film.

Young people, aged 15 to 19, can reserve their seat and take part in the third of four free screenings on 21 May, from 4-7pm, at Fellows Court Community Centre, E2. Text or call Mandy on: 07958 183 678; 020 8356 5433; or e-mail: mandy.richards@hackney.gov.uk

Jamming showcase

YOUNG musicians, producers and backstage volunteers aged 13 to 19 can sign up to take part in a massive music event at Stoke Newington Town Hall in July.

If you enjoy all genres of music and want to appear on stage, or help Stoke Newington Youth Forum put together the 'Hackney Jam' music event, this is your chance to get involved.

Schools and youth clubs are also invited to put forward a band to perform a piece of music from a selection of different styles including rock, indie, jazz, classical, neo-soul and RnB.

One night on the big screen

By Molly Marie Bond, aged 12

ON 13 April, Myddleton Grange community centre had a film night – and it was so popular there was standing room only for latecomers.

The film night showed movies that young people had created about their lives on Myddleton Grange estate, with help from a group called Mouth That Roars. Parents, children, residents' association members, and representatives of three housing associations – Agudas Israel, North London Muslim Housing Association and Southern Housing – all gave up a couple of hours to show their appreciation of the short films.

The young people and children were able to be hands-on with the media equipment and get a feel on how to use a camera and microphone, and to edit, record and produce the short films. This gave them a taste of media studies and gave them the opportunity to be creative and give them more confidence.

This workshop was a very good thing to do as all of the children worked together and got to learn new things about each other.

Ivy Street's big three-oh

Fun at the Ivy Street Family Centre

THE Ivy Street Family Centre is planning to celebrate its 30th year as a support service for local parents and children.

During an afternoon party at its Hoxton hub, guests are invited to share memories of their time at the centre over tea and cakes.

Founded by Ali Harper in 1981, and currently run by Hoxton Vineyard Trust, the centre offers a drop-in respite for parents and carers, while giving under-fives a place to learn and play. Lorraine, a centre volunteer who was one of the first parents to come to Ivy Street, said: "I had five kids and brought them all here. I'd been to hell and back – my son has many disabilities – and only at Ivy Street have we felt fully welcome. No one judges you here. I'd have been lost without them. That's why I now volunteer myself."

Currently, Ivy Street supporters are working to raise £1.2million to redevelop the site in order to provide additional services, including debt management advice and a project targeted at older residents.

The party kicks off at Ivy Street Centre, Ivy Street, N1, on 15 May, 3-5pm. For more info call: 020 7729 2789; or visit: www.ivystreet.co.uk

News in brief

Run round the Marshes

CHARITY Homerton Hope is inviting local people to join hospital staff for a 10km or 3km run around Hackney Marshes.

Holding its sixth annual race, the charity that backs Homerton hospital is hoping to raise money for a new HIV unit. The event is set to take place on 14 May, with the 10k beginning at 10am and the 3k at 11.30am.

Your voice on disability

HACKNEY Homes Disability Forum is looking for new members to join the group.

It gives local disabled people the opportunity to suggest improvements that could be made to services provided by Hackney Homes, the organisation which manages the borough's Council housing.

Neehara Wijeyesekera, Head of Tenancy and Leasehold Services at Hackney Homes, said: "Forums such as this allow us to listen to and act upon what is important to our residents."

Local people are invited to attend its annual general meeting on 11 May, 11am-1.30pm at City Edge, 125-127 Mare Street, E8. For more info on the meeting, transport accessibility, or to get sign up call: 020 8356 6133; or e-mail: getinvolved@hackneyhomes.org.uk

Help Disability Back Up

DISABILITY Back Up, a user-led forum for disabled people, is currently looking for an organisation to support it following the closure of Hackney Family Back Up.

The Council is working with forum members and hopes to appoint a new partner organisation in the next two months.

A better end to life

THERE should be a more open debate about perceptions of dying, according to a local charity.

St Joseph's Hospice is tackling the subject head-on with four events to encourage residents to think about and discuss dying, death and bereavement.

Taking place in London Fields on 16 May, 'Dying For A Cuppa' offers the chance to meet hospice staff and find out about its services. On 17 May, the hospice teams up with Age Concern Hackney to provide a will writing workshop, while charity

The St Joseph's Hospice Community Choir

Down to Earth hands out information on funeral planning. On 20 May, visitors can hear from St Joseph's choir and take part in an arts project at a garden tea party at its Mare Street headquarters. Just outside the borough, an end of life conference on 19 May takes place at the London Muslim Centre on Whitechapel Road, E1.

The events form part of Dying Matters Awareness Week from 16 to 22 May.

Sarah Burnard, an event co-ordinator at St Joseph's, said the week was an opportunity for people to put their natural fears to one side. She added: "Many people still feel uncomfortable talking about end of life issues.

"Everyone deserves a good death, and this is more likely to be achieved if we discuss it early on."

There is a discrepancy between preferences about where people would like to die and their actual place of death, said the charity. It pointed to research that showed around 70 per cent of people prefer to die at home but more than 60 per cent die in hospital.

The Mayor and Councillors

Councillors are elected by Hackney residents and serve for four years. The last borough elections were in May 2010.

Councillors have a range of responsibilities, including helping to oversee the Council and its services. They hold advice surgeries where residents can meet their local representative and ask them to take up issues that may be of concern.

Generally they can help with Council related matters, but if the issue is the responsibility of another person or organisation, councillors can often point people in the right direction and tell residents who they need to see.

Hackney has 57 councillors representing areas called wards – illustrated in the map opposite.

To check which councillor covers your area, or confirm surgery times, call: 020 8356 3373. More info: www.hackney.gov.uk/l-mayor-cabinet-councillors.htm

A clean sheet

It is hard today to realise how much people were threatened by disease before antibiotics, when even illnesses that now cause little more than temporary discomfort could kill.

A glance at the annual report of the Hackney Medical Officer for 1900 lists deaths from chicken pox, influenza, scarlet fever, measles and diarrhoea, as well as smallpox, cholera, typhoid, and diphtheria.

Many people lived in cramped, dirty conditions, often without clean water and overrun with fleas and lice, so it was inevitable that once a disease took hold, it quickly spread through the community.

As part of the Victorian effort to combat these problems, the Cleansing of Persons Act of 1897 gave local authorities the power 'to permit any person who shall apply to the said authority, on the ground that he is infested with vermin, to have the use, free of charge, of the apparatus (if any) which the authority possess for cleansing the person and his clothing from vermin...'

Between 1900 and 1901 the then Metropolitan Borough of Hackney built a public disinfecting station in Millfields Road in order to comply with the Act.

This consisted of a chamber where the furniture, bedding and belongings from infected homes could be treated either by superheated high-pressure steam disinfectors or cyanide, while the houses themselves were fumigated. The cyanide chamber was also sometimes used to treat contaminated dry food such grains, nuts, and seeds.

People themselves needed to be cleaned and couldn't live in their homes during the fumigation, so a temporary shelter was also built alongside the disinfecting station to house them.

This consisted of four furnished two-roomed flats, each totally separated from the others to prevent the spread of infection.

The station had two separate bathrooms for men and women, along with a laundry, drying room and ironing room where contaminated clothing was dealt with. There was also a lodge for the caretaker, a garage for vans, and a stable for horses used to transport items to the station.

'With this station and shelter,' declared the Medical Officer in 1902, 'I have no hesitation in stating that Hackney will be the most completely equipped district in London for dealing with infectious and contagious disease.'

During the slum clearances of the 1930s, the Hackney disinfecting station, like many others throughout London, was heavily used to cleanse people and their belongings before they were moved into newly built Council accommodation. But gradually the role of disinfecting stations was taken over by hospitals, and with the development of antibiotics, improvements in medical treatment and living conditions, they were needed far less frequently.

The Millfields station closed in the late 1980s, while the last London station, in Croydon, closed in 1999, although some still survive in other parts of the country. Today the Millfields station and caretaker's lodge survive and have been granted Grade II listed status by English Heritage. It is hoped the site can eventually be put to a new community use.

Recipes straight from the ovens at Hoxton Apprentice

www.hoxtonapprentice.com

Philip Nhan, 21, studied for a BTEC in IT Media. He was unemployed for ten months before joining The Hoxton Apprentice through education, training and employment charity, Partners in Hope. He enjoyed cooking and wanted to learn more. Philip says the training that was provided helped him build his culinary skills, and he has learnt how to create complicated dishes. Working for Hoxton Apprentice has enabled Philip to build his team work skills. He has also become more confident and sociable, and is looking forward to continuing to work in restaurants. He said: "I really enjoyed my time here at The Hoxton Apprentice. If it wasn't for the experience and time I have spent here, I wouldn't be where I am now."

Goat's cheese soufflé

Serves 8 (approx)

Preparation time

30mins

Cooking time

12mins

Ingredients

- 700ml full fat milk
- 500g goat's cheese
- 8 egg yolks
- 12 egg whites
- 10g cornflour
- 100g plain flour
- 100g soft butter, plus cold butter for moulds
- Finely grated Parmesan cheese to coat moulds
- Worcestershire sauce, Tabasco sauce, English mustard, salt and white pepper to taste.

Method

- Butter the inside of eight individual soufflé moulds and dust with Parmesan cheese
- Over a low heat, mix the soft butter and flour in a medium pan. Bring milk to the boil and add to the butter and flour mixture
- Cook for a few minutes then add the goat's cheese and allow to melt to a smooth texture
- Add sauces, mustard, salt and pepper
- Transfer the mixture into a large mixing bowl and gradually mix in the egg yolks
- Whisk the egg whites with the cornflour to a medium soft peak, and then gradually fold into the goat's cheese mixture in three stages
- Distribute the mixture between the moulds and place in large tray, fill with hot water and cook for 12mins at 170°C.

The Hoxton Apprentice is a social enterprise set up to train unemployed Hackney people – both in the kitchen and front of house.

Six-month apprenticeships prepare people for the workplace and give them the chance to gain an NVQ in Hospitality. Profits are returned to Training For Life, the charity which operates the restaurant, to deliver more training for unemployed people. If you would like to offer an apprentice a job, or become an apprentice yourself, call Ben Anderson on: 020 7749 2800. For more info, visit: www.hoxtonapprentice.com

An open book

THE Council is inviting residents to have their say on the future of Hackney's libraries and archives.

The borough's eight libraries are being kept open, despite cuts in Government funding for local authorities, and the Council wants to hear what local people think of the plans set out in the draft Library and Archives Development Strategy 2011-2015.

The new Dalston CLR James Library and Hackney Archives is due to open later this year. The Council is proposing to make some changes to opening hours across all libraries. It also proposes to concentrate a reduced number of events and activities at the three main libraries – in Dalston, Hackney Central and Stoke Newington.

Events for children will continue to be held at all libraries. The Council is also looking for people who would be willing to offer their time as volunteers in libraries.

For more info, come along to a drop-in session at Stoke Newington Library, from 2-4pm, on 16 May; or Hackney Central Library, from 5.30-7.30pm, on 13 June. The consultation runs until 27 June. Once all the responses have been analysed, the findings will be made available and final proposals are set to be published later this summer.

Read the draft strategy and complete the survey at: www.hackney.gov.uk/libraries. Alternatively e-mail: consultation@hackney.gov.uk, or send written views to: Freepost LON 18819, Consultation Team, London Borough of Hackney. Please include 'Library and Archives Development Strategy' in the subject line.

To request a paper copy of the draft strategy call: 020 8356 3000.

Fostering information evening

Fostering can really change lives for the better. It can bring security, confidence, teach new skills and uncover potential. And that's just the carers!

If your personal history has given you the skills to help a child grow, skills like patience, listening, common sense, you could be exactly what Hackney Fostering Service is looking for.

Why not use your potential to help a young person realise theirs?

For more information on our comprehensive training programme and the fees you receive as a foster carer, come along to our information evening on

Thursday 26 May 2011, Hackney Town Hall, 5 to 7pm

For more information call 08000 730 418
or email fostering@hackney.gov.uk
